“ I remember his laughter when I called myself trying to be serious with him or a crazy subject just messing around with him, I remember he hate to put on lotion, but I forced the issue enough it became natural to him. I remember he would come home from being gone at work driving the country and we would stay up all night laughing talking going on food runs. I remember he would call my phone any time of the day or night just to talk because he would be driving. I remember his laughter his smile it could most definitely light up the room and melt your heart! I remember not matter what the situation was he never turned his back on me! I love you Lawrence Ray Birts and Miss the crap out of you!!! Keep watching over Us!
